June 2017

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful

Introduction

The Research Center for Jurisprudence and Law was established in 1995 and its field of study is devoted to the Islamic jurisprudential and legal knowledge and its related sciences.

The works of this research center are very diverse and not limited to a particular field of jurisprudence and law, but it defines and approves those research priorities whose main characteristic of all these studies is the element of "innovation", according to criteria such as the need of the community and the lack of research in a particular topic.

One of the most important innovations of this research center is the attempt to explain and explicate the philosophy of jurisprudence and institutionalize it in studies focusing on jurisprudential science. During its scientific lifetime, in addition to review the legacy of new developments, the research center has been trying to underscore the better efficacy of Shiite jurisprudence by making use of Shiite jurisprudential legacy and seminary scholars.

Goals

The main goals of this research center are:

1. Explaining and revising the basics and theoretical frameworks of jurisprudential science in order to consolidate and develop it in various personal and social fields.
2. Providing effective jurisprudential models towards responding to the basic needs and questions of contemporary human and society.
3. Providing intelligent analysis of jurisprudential and legal teachings.
4. Explaining the foundations and jurisprudential and legal issues in the Islamic Republic of Iran and answering its needs.
5. Introducing and explaining the foundations, sources, territory, goals, history and methods for the inference of jurisprudence and Islamic law.
6. Transferring the needs of the inference to the Usul<sup>2</sup> science (principles of Islamic jurisprudence) and turning them into subjects in the Usul-related form.

1. Principles of Islamic Jurisprudence

7. Leading profoundly Usul-related skills from purely scientific discussions to practical ones.
8. Fertilizing the knowledge capacities of jurisprudential rules in the framework of strengthening the comparative topics of jurisprudence and law.

The process of conducting researches can be categorized by two axes of acceptance and performance.

- a. The Acceptance axis: Research topics are first approved in the form of a brief plan in the scientific council of the relevant department, then it will be reviewed and approved in the research council of the research center and after that, the detailed plan also goes through the same steps.
- b. The performance axis: The research texts will be referred to the research council of the center after being evaluated and approved by the department in order to be published after its confirmation and relevant amendments. At all these stages, especially at the acceptance stage, the research center cooperates with scientific and cultural centers in the Islamic propagation office.
